

INTERPRETERS

VS

TRANSLATORS

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE?

* Being bilingual is not enough. You have to be trained and certified to be considered a Professional *

STYLES: Simultaneous, Consecutive (back and forth), chuchottage (whispering)

SPECIALTIES: Localization (Websites, games, apps, software), subtitling

Service delivered in real-time

Native in one, and near native in the other language

Has to study the subject matter before the session

Has to have great memory and speed thinking skills

SOURCE:
the language translating or interpreting from

TARGET:
the language translating or interpreting into

Usually the mother tongue

Days or weeks to complete

Translate into native language

Uses dictionaries, glossaries and other resources

Has to have great writing skills and deep knowledge of grammar

Sometimes they can be both

BUT
an Interpreter will always correct you if you call him a Translator!

BUT
a Translator will always correct you if you call him an Interpreter!

www.inLingo.com